SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR
For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.
Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!
For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE,
And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony.
Simmons Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.
J. GILL SHORTER, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons Liver Regulator has. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve.
P. M. JANNEY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

SILAS M. CLARK.

SILAS M. CLARK.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT.

Hon. Silas M. Clark is a resident of the beautiful little town of Indiana, in Indiana county, where he has dwelt for many years. He is widely known throughout his own and surrounding counties, and has the respect, the confidence and friendship of all classes of citizens. Eminent as a lawer, he adorns every relation of life and meets and discharges all the duties of advanced citizenship in a great commonwealth. He is not a "politician" in the perverted popular sense of that word, and in every case in which office or distinction came to him it was not of his own seeking. His nomination to the high and responsible office of Judge of the Supreme Court, is a deserved tribute alike to his professional ability, and to his personal worth.

MR. CLARK'S POLITICAL RECORD.

But Silas M. Clark is not one of those men who avoid politics as a filthy pool in which honest men should not dabble. He holds it the right and duty of every good citizen to vote; he recognizes that good men should not shirk their share in party management, and while he never stooped to the detested tricks of political schemers, he never ran away from public duties. He has frequently represented his county in Democratic State Conventions and was ever ready to lend his wise council to party leaders. He has also been a candidate for office. Profound in his knowledge of the law, and just in all his dealings with men, he has long been regarded a fit man to grace the Judical bench. In 1869 while yet in his 36th year, Mr. Clark's name was presented, without his knowledge or consent before the Democratic State Convention for Supreme Judge. He received between 40 and 50 votes. Hon. Cyrus L. Pershing was nominated.

The following year he was tendered the unanimous Democratic nomination for President Judge of the Tenth Judical district, then composed of Armstrong, Indiana and Westmoreland counties. The district was Republican and his opponent was an honorable member of that party—Hon. James A. Logan, of Westmoreland. The contest was the most exciting ever had in that district for any office. Both candidates were able lawyers and popular gentlemen. Warm friends sprang to the support of each. Mr. Logan was solicitor of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., and the western officers of that corporation were his warm personal friends. They did all within their power for Mr. Logan. Trains were sent out along the railroad and voters were hauled free of cost to the polling places. Mr. Logan was popular also among railroad employees, and every man voted for him. That won him the contest. Mr. Clark was defeated by 400 votes in a district that in the election of the succeeding year gave other Republican candidates 2900 majority. Judge Logan assumed the ermine, Mr. Clark practiced under him for years, and the other day paid him this well merited compliment:

"Judge Logan was a good, able and just judge."

IN THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

In 1872 Mr. Clark was a candidate for delegate to the Constitutional Convention, and having been elected he assumed the duties of that office. He served on the committee on Declaration of Rights, on private Corporations and on Revision, bodies entrusted with perhaps the most important work accomplished by the great body of representative men. Mr. Clark was added to this latter committee at the special request of its chairman, Hon. Henry W. Palmer, Attorney General of Pennsylvania.

In 1874 Mr. Clark's friends again offered his name before the Democratic State Convention, and he received forty-one votes for Supreme Judge. Justice W. J. Woodward was nominated and elected. When Mr. Clark was named before the recent State Convention at Harrisburg, delegates from every section flocked to his support. He was unanimously nominated by acclimation on the second ballot. The nomination came to him unsought. Several days afterward he wrote a private note to a personal friend, in which he says: "I had no hope of receiving the nomination, was not thinking of it; expected only complimentary mention." He resorted to no tricks to secure it; there was no bosses to promise it to him; it was given to him by a convention whose enemies freely admit that it "committed no blunders."

Such is Silas M. Clark's political record. Mr. Clark is no disappointed office seeker; no broken down political hack; he is a man who always scorned the tricks of the demagogue, an honest Democrat, but no political bigot—a man to challenge the admiration of every voter who believes politics should not be brought into the canvass for Supreme Judge.

THE FRIEND OF POPULAR EDUCATION.

Mr. Clark has the merit of being a self made and self-cultured man; he has achieved his present success in life through no family influence, wealth or other adventitious circumstances; he comes up from the ranks of the people, from a parentage and family which is highly respectable but of humble pretensions. He acquired the elementary part of his knowledge in the Common Schools, but at the age of fourteen years he entered the Indiana Academy, where he began the course of study which developed his capacity for success. Whilst he attended the Academy, he labored at times upon the farm, and for one year carried the mail between Indiana and Blairsville; reciting at the Academy one day and serving as mail carrier the next, alternately.

It was a matter of some curiosity and surprise to some of the students of the Blairsville Academy on one occasion when they found that the mail carrier boy from Indiana carried a copy of Horace's odes in his pocket to while away the time of his delay in Blairsville. In rather rude language they twitted the friendless lad about his Latin, and in defiant manner challenged him to measure his knowledge with their's; full of pluck, the little post boy accepted, and he proved more than a match for the most proficient Latin scholar among them. And, perhaps, the worthy preceptor of the Blairsville Academy was not less surprised when the same mail boy in 1881, came to old Jefferson College at Canonsburg, Pa., and upon examination by the faculty was passed into the Junior class as a classmate. Mr. Clark graduated from this excellent and then most prosperous institution in the class of 1852. He had enjoyed very meagre advantages compared with the rich man's sons who were his class mates, but he graduated fifth in a class of sixty members. He was a clear thinker, a strong reasoner and a good speaker, whose efforts generally excelled in the college literary organizations. For this reason he was elected by the Philo Society to deliver the valedictory at the semi-centennial anniversary of the organization of the college.

For two years young Clark served as instructor in the same academy in which he himself attended prior to entering college. He taught forty-five young men, most of whom were older than himself. He was a kind and successful instructor, and from that time he proved himself to be a zealous and faithful friend of popular education; for twelve successive years he was a director in the public schools. His own trials and disadvantages had taught him the value of good schools, and he threw his whole energy into the work, and was the kind of man, above all others, to guard the school interests. To his judgment and energy are the public schools of the pretty little borough largely indebted for their present prosperity. In 1851 the first Teacher's Institute of Indiana county was organized. Silas M. Clark was present to lend encouragement and give counsel In 1872 the State Normal School at Indiana was organized. Mr. Clark was a subscriber to the project, and one of the most active and most successful canvassers for other subscriptions. He was elected a member of the first Board of Trustees, and after the death of Mr. John Sutton was chosen President of that Board, which position he still occupies. In the sad trials of the institution Mr. Clark was its staunchest supporter, and to his work more than to that of any other man is due the present success of the Indiana State Normal School. His friendly aid and warm encouragement to officer, teacher and pupils was like "bread cast upon the waters," that will return to him at the November elections; for not a man ever connected with the institution, and not a person in Indiana county interested in popular education, but is numbered among his warmest friends.

THE LAWYER AND ADVOCATE.

A man of forty-eight years, practising attorney for twenty-five years, Mr. Clark has never been sued and has never sued anybody. Though a lawyer, he believes in shunning litigation

Mr. Clark read law with Wm. M. Stewart, Esq., a distinguished and able advocate. Mr. Stewart was defeated for Congress in 1862 by the late John L. Dawson, father-in-law of Chauncey F. Black, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor. Mr. Clark was admitted to the Indiana bar in Sept. 1857. After a clerkship of one year he was admitted into partnership with his instructor, and for sixteen years the firm as Stewart & Clark had much the largest and most lucrative practice in Indiana county, and indeed one of the largest in Western Pennsylvania. In 1874, after Mr. Clark's return from the Constitutional Convention, the firm was dissolved. Mr. Stewart removed to Philadelphia, where he resides at present, a member of the well known banking firm B. K. Jamison & Co., of that city. The firm of Stewart & Clark never had a written agreement and never a disagreement. Their large business was settled up without a hitch or dispute. Since 1874, Mr. Clark has continued in the law, practising by himself, and in the past decade there has not been a single suit of magnitude in this county in which he was not engaged as counsel. His professional honor and integrity, and ability, are well known to all citizens of Western Pennsylvania. Few lawyers west of the Alleghenies have taken part in so many cases before the Supreme Court, and none have been more successful. There are few attorneys in Pennsylvania of riper experience, more mature judgment, greater political reputation and deeper knowledge of men than Hon. Thomas M. Marshall of Pittsburg the Republican attorney who declined the stalwart nomination for Congressman-at-Large, Mr. Marshall said recently of Mr. Clark:

"You Democrats have a great man on your ticket for Supreme Judge, and I will vote for him. I have known him for a year. He is a big-headed, strong man. I do not know in Western Pennsylvania a lawyer of more straight forward, moral, natural strength than Silas M. Clark. He is clean cut and courageous in asserting his principles. If he is elected he will do himself honor and shed lustre upon the supreme bench. He is a big man all over and in every way."

Mr. Marshall's was a voluntary tribute to Mr Clark's professional standing, purity of purpose and honesty of heart.

But there is much additional Republican testimony concerning Mr. Clark's personal worth. The Progress, a Republican newspaper published at his home, speaking of the Democratic state ticket, said of him:

"With one exception we know little of the candidates, that exception being our highly esteemed townsman, Hon. Silas M. Clark. We unhesitatingly express the sentiment which all who enjoy the personal acquaintance of Mr. Clark will confess in place, that if the Republican party is to suffer defeat in any portion of its ticket, we could generously submit to the ultimatum of the ballot that would place such a Democrat as Hon Silas M. Clark on the supreme bench."

The Messenger, another Republican paper, published in Indiana, Pa., says:

"The nomination by the Democratic State Convention of Hon. Silas M. Clark, of this place, for position of Supreme Judge, was no mistake. He is, perhaps, the strongest man they could have selected. He is upright, honest, intelligent, and one of the best lawyers in the State and is very popular where best known. Though opposed to him politically, we cannot but feel glad that our county has been honored by the selection, by one of the great political parties of the State, of one of our citizens for the honorable and responsible position of Supreme Judge. Besides, he is eminently fitted for the position, and if the Republican candidates should be defeated, there is the consolation of knowing that the place will be filled by a worthy man. We know that very many Republicans in this and adjoining counties will vote for him, but as the office for which he is a candidate is not a political one, we presume they will not be esteemed traitors to their party for so doing. Fitness alone should be considered in the selection of our judges, and whether Mr. Rawle or Mr. Clark shall be elected this year we will have a judge who will be a credit to the bench and an honor to the State."

THE MAN OF FAMILY.

Silas M. Clark was borne on January 18, 1834, at Elderton, a little village in Armstrong county, half way between Indiana and Kittanning. His ancestors, of the sterling Scotch-Irish stock, came from Franklin county, Pa., and settled in Armstrong county when that district was a wilderness. Mr. James Clark, his father, never held office except the position of school director and justice of the peace. He was never canal commissioner, as erroneously stated by ex Senator Buckalew recently. Canal Commissioner Clark was the father of Hon. James C. Clark, of Westmoreland county.

Borrowers.

"I have suffered considerably from the enroachments of borrowers," says a thrifty farmer. "Some years ago my several poorer neighbors seemed to think that as I was well supplied, it was my duty to lend them whatever they wanted. The question which they asked was 'Are you going to use your wagon to-day?' And if the answer was negative, I had no further voice in the matter; the wagon was to be taken, of course. Some of them even went so far as to regard my right to any of the tools as second to theirs, and one of them positively refused to return a machine till he had done with it, although I was in equal need. I lent a tool costing twenty dollars to a neighbor, which he kept so long I forgot who took it. After inquiring for many miles I traced it out. The borrower was mortified; he told his hired man to return it, instead of which he had put it in an out-of-the-way place; but it would probably have come home sooner if drawing twenty-five cents a day all this time. I finally determined to charge a moderate sum for the use of my tools, and have succeeded in partly breaking up their borrowing and lending. I began with a harrow, which had been borrowed so much that several teeth were missing. When I discovered this loss, I told the next applicant that each borrower must add a tooth. Some complied, and others would not take it. I am aware that poorer neighbors may think hard of richer ones who will not lend anything, but he who would please all will find no limit to the yearly widening circle of borrowers. Accommodate where he reasonably can, and there stop. They will like him none the less in the end. Fixed prices for loaning out would be an excellent remedy, and prevent much trouble.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe recently wrote a letter denying, in a qualified manner, that the Rev. Josiah Henson was the original of her "Uncle Tom." Mr. Henson, aged 94, is living on his farm in Ontario. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press has visited him, and become convinced that Mrs. Stowe did build up her story from that of Henson which had been published by the American Anti-Slavery Society. He is a large, sinewy man, powerful in spite of his age, but disabled in both arms and a shoulder blade by a blow from a slave driver. He has never been able to lift his hands to his head, the bones having grown together without proper setting. Mrs. Stowe made her hero die a martyr's death, but the real hero recovered, and afterward helped more than a hundred slaves to escape to Canada. He owns a good house and farm, his parlor is neatly furnished, and he has many gilt books and pictures.

Circumstantial Evidence.

THE PLOT THAT A QUARREL BROUGHT TO LIGHT.

Many cases of circumstantial evidence occurred in the seventeenth century. One Thomas Harris kept an inn in 1641 about eighteen miles from York, England, on the road to Newcastle. He had a man and a maid servant. The man, whose name was Morgan, he kept in the threefold capacity of waiter, hostler and gardener.

One night a blacksmith named James Gray, traveling on foot to Edinburg, stopped at Harris', "supped and lay there." The next morning, very early, Morgan set off and went secretly to a neighboring Magistrate and gave information that his master (Harris) had just then murdered James Gray, the traveler. A warrant was issued and Harris was apprehended. He positively denied the charge, and Morgan as positively affirmed it, deposing that he saw Harris on the stranger's bed strangling him; that he interposed, but came too late to save him; that Harris' excuse was that the deceased was in a fit, and he was only assisting him. Morgan further swore that he instantly retired and made a feint as if going down stairs, but, creeping up stealthily to an adjoining room, he there through a key hole saw Harris rifling the pockets of the dead man.

Harris denied every part of the story, from beginning to end, and the body being examined and no marks of violence appearing upon it, Harris was about to be discharged, when the maid servant desired to be sworn. She deposed that almost directly after her master came down in the morning from the traveler's room, as she supposed, she saw him go into the garden, she being, unknown to him, in a wash house in the rear overlooking it. He took some gold out of his pocket, wrapped it in something and buried it in a corner of the garden. Harris turned pale at this accusation, and would give no direct answer as to the alleged burying of the money. An officer was sent with the girl, and cash to the amount of thirty pounds was found in the spot pointed out by her. Harris then, with much hesitation, acknowledged the hiding of the money, but answered questions concerning it with such unwillingness and want of candor that all doubts of his guilt were removed, and the Magistrate committed him for trial. He was brought to the bar at the York Summer Assizes, in 1642. Morgan testified the same as when before the Justice. The officer and maid servant deposed to the circumstance of the unearthing of the money, and the Magistrate gave testimony to the confusion and hesitation of Harris on the discovery of and the questioning about the hiding of the gold.

Harris in his defense, asserted that the whole of Morgan's evidence was false. He presisted in the declaration that the money which he had buried was his own property, honestly come by and buried for security—that his confusion before the Magistrate arose from the shame of acknowledging his natural covetousness and not from the consciousness of guilt. The Judge summed up the evidence of the hiding of the money and the weakness of the prisoner's reason for so hiding it. The jury, after consulting exactly two minutes, brought in their verdict—guilty.

Harris was executed pursuant to his sentence, preserving in his declarations of innocence, but warning all persons to guard against an avaricious disposition, for it was that sordidness of temper which, he said, had led him into general distrustfulness, and so into the expedient of burying his money, which circumstances had alone furnished the means to his enemies—why they were so he said he knew not, but forgave them—of bringing him to an ignominious death.

After his execution Morgan and the servant maid, who had been sweethearts at the inn, went to live together, but in the beginning of the year 1643 they got to quarreling, and between their mutual charges the truth about Harris came out. He was entirely innocent. It seems that the girl had by chance seen him burying something in the garden, and privatly acquainted Morgan of the fact. He being gardner, had an opportunity of digging for it without being suspected by Harris. The "something" proved to be five guineas. Morgan left them undisturbed, telling the girl about it. Between them they concluded not then to touch the money, because they thought Harris would be sure to add to it. When it had amounted to a good sum they agreed to plunder the hiding place together, marry, and with the spoil set up in some sort of business.

All happened as they expected. They watched Harris, and saw him add continually to his little store, but they left it until it should amount to a large sum Matters were at this pass when one day Morgan and Harris got into a quarrel, and the latter struck the former several times

Morgan determined on revenge. When he was in this mood, the foot pad James Gray arrived, and being struck with apoplexy in the night, expired instantly.

Going to call him in the morning, Morgan, finding him dead, immediately conceived his diabolical plan of revenge. It was to charge Harris with the murdering and robbing of Gray, and while Harris was in prison, of stealing the buried treasure. He confided his scheme to the maid, she agreed to help him; thereupon Morgan gave information to the authorities in the manner already described. Harris, in his indignation at the unjust charges against him, declared that when released he would have Morgan punished for perjury. The girl, in her alarm at this prospect, in a moment hit upon the idea of sacrificing the gold, and also the life of her employer in order to save her lover. She therefore supported his accusation with fatal success. Both Morgan and the girl were arrested in consequence of these facts leaking out in their quarreling.

They escaped the public punishment due their crime by both dying, almost at the same time, of a jail disease.

Harris' innocence became afterward further illustrated by its being ascertained that James Gray, the supposed murdered man, had two attacks of apoplexy a few months previous to his death, and that he was never possessed of five pounds at one time in the course of his life.

Wonderful Mesmeric Feats.

HAPPENINGS IN THE EDITORIAL PRESENCE THAT MUST THEREFORE BE REAL.

Upon special invitation sent them, a number of physicians, lawyers and scientific gentlemen assembled in the Commercial editorial rooms recently to witness a private entertainment given by the Profs. Kennedy, the mesmerists. Five first-class subjects were selected and they were compelled to do things that amazed those present, especially the physicians. Numerous tests, such as causing the subject to cry, laugh, move restlessly around on their chairs and make ugly faces at imaginary persons whom they disliked, were gone through with, and the Professors then tried more difficult tests, and in every instance were successful with all the subjects.

A silver dollar was placed upon the floor and the subjects were told that they could have the dollar if they could pick it up and hold on to it. A rush and scramble was made for the piece of money, but on account of an imaginary heat it possessed not one of the subjects could more than merely touch it. The Professors removed the impression that the coin was hot, and one of the subjects grabbed it up and sticking it down his pantaloons pocket, walked away with it smiling. But he didn't go far until the coin began to burn him, and he undoubtedly suffered great torture before he could get the money out of his pocket and threw it away. This test was successfully worked on all the subjects.

The Professors next removed the sense of smell from the subjects, and a bottle of ammonia was held under their noses, but not the slightest effect did it have upon them. Prof. Thomas William Tobin, who was present, requested permission to try the ammonia, and the room in which the entertainment was given was completely filled with a strong odor of ammonia, so strong that the eyes of several of those in the room became watery. The saturated paper was then rubbed under the noses of the mesmerized subjects, but not the slightest effect was noticeable upon their eyes, which, by the way were wide open. Prof. Tobin was thoroughly convinced that the subjects had really been deprived of the sense of smell.

The next test consisted of making the subjects drink castor oil under the impression that it was strained honey. A four ounce bottle of the nauseating oil was produced, and the subjects fought and shoved each other around to gain possession of it. They each took a pull at the vile stuff, and smacking their lips, asked for more. When the impression was removed and the subjects became aware of what they had been taking they grew rather sick, but with a wave of the Professor's hand before their faces the bad taste in their mouths was instantly removed.

Two of the subjects were next sewed together with a doubled thread. The needle was stuck through their cheeks, and Professor Tobin pulled the thread partly through to convince himself that the needle had actually penetrated the flesh. The subjects were allowed to stand sewed together a few moments, and when brought to were entirely unconscious of what had just occurred, although a person to look at them while they were being sewed would suppose that they were conscious of everything going on about them.

Several interesting and amusing tests were given and the entertainment concluded. The gentlemen present were so utterly surprised at the performance that they did not undertake to offer any sort of explanation for the wonderful things they had witnessed. They all decided to go home and dream over it, and then read all the works on mesmerism that they could get hold of.

THE CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATION.

Columbia county has reason to complain of the result of the Congressional Conference and of the agencies by which that result was produced. For it was conceded on all hands and was true beyond dispute, that this county was fairly entitled to the nomination upon the principle of rotation or equal privilege among the counties of the district, that she presented a competent candidate and that his selection would be sustained by public opinion both within and without the district. It is equally certain that our present Representative in Congress had no claim for election to a third term, upon either usage, public sentiment, or his possession of distinguished ability and fitness for public service; nor had he any just ground for resentment against this county or its candidate because his claim was refused. And yet it was his intrigues to secure a third election, which disturbed the orderly action of the district and protracted and clouded with suspicion the sittings of the Mauch Chunk Conference. And it was his exasperation over his ultimate failure to capture the conference for himself, that inspired the transfer of his conference votes, good and bad, to a candidate from the county of Monroe. Thus for the fifth time in succession, the nomination is carried to the eastern side of the district, and we must be permitted to add that upon no one of the occasions referred to has it been placed there by pious and pure hands.

MR. YOCUM'S STATEMENT.

As one of the members and as a secretary of the late Congressional Conference for this district, I attended all its sessions and kept a correct record of the votes cast, and am therefore able to furnish to our people some information in detail of what was done. The Conference met on Wednesday, September 6th, at 3 P. M., at the American House, Mauch Chunk. A bogus set of Conferees from Lackawanna county, got up in the interest of Mr. Klotz and headed by a Washington clerk named Barton, appeared to contest the seats of the regular Conferees from the division of Lackawanna included in the Congressional district. It appeared that the contestants had no pretence of authority from any Convention, or even from any Congressional committee, but only from a Lackawanna committee manipulated by the notorious A. Augustus Chase, (lately twice condemned on trial for libel before Judge Elwell in Luzerne), and which committee had no official relations whatever with our Congressional district, if in fact its members reside within it. On the other hand the regular Conferees had been chosen, by a convention called by the Congressional Committee for the Lackawanna part of the district, in which the people were fully represented and instructions fairly adopted in favor of Mr. Buckalew for Congress. This bold and desperate attempt to pack the Conference with Klotz Conferees, was most righteously defeated by a vote of 13 to 5, only the Klotz men from Luzerne and Pike, sailing under the colors of Gorman and Lewis, voting for it. Even the Carbon Conferees refused to assist in carrying it out.

The Conference after taking thirteen ballots without result, adjourned to half past eight on Thursday morning, when fourteen more ballots were had, Mr. Buckalew receiving 9 votes on the 19th ballot and no other candidate more than 4. It is to be remembered that each whole county and each of the divisions of Luzerne and Lackawanna included in the district, had three Conferees; that the whole number of Conferees was 21, and that eleven votes were required to nominate.

The Conference again met at 11 A. M., the same day and took ballots numbered 28 to 35 inclusive. Mr. Buckalew received 10 votes on the 35th ballot The 10 votes were made up of the full vote of Columbia, Lackawanna and Monroe, and of one (Dr. Trimmer) from Luzerne.

The next session of the Conference began at 1½ P. M., and ballots were had numbered from 36 to 51 inclusive. On the 36th Mr. Buckalew had 9 votes composed of the votes of Columbia, Lackawanna and Monroe, and on the 37th, 38th and 39th ballots he had 10 votes composed of the same three counties with one from Luzerne. He had also 9 votes on the 44th ballot being the same as those given him on the 36th.

At the next session, the same day, commencing at 5 o'clock p. m. ballots numbered from 52 to 65 inclusive were taken, Mr. Buckalew receiving 8 votes on the 56th. The conference then adjourned to Friday morning, September 8th, at 9 o'clock, when the 66th, and final ballot, was taken, resulting in 7 votes for Buckalew. 11 for Storm and three for Miles. The Storm vote on this ballot consisted of the votes of Carbon, Monroe and Pike, and of two, (Hart and O'Donnell), from Luzerne.

Upon the face of the proceedings Mr. Klotz does not appear as a candidate for nomination, but he was a most earnest and eager one and had been such for some time before the Conference met. The Carbon conferees were chosen upon a pledge to vote for him if he could get enough additional votes, outside of that county, to secure a nomination, but he was only able to get the 3 votes from Pike and two Gorman votes from Luzerne, which were not enough. In short, he had but eight votes at command, and could obtain no more, and the idea of a third term had to be abandoned.

Although the Monroe and Montour Conferees were pledged to vote with Columbia county at the last session on Friday morning, it will be seen that they did not do so. The 8 Klotz votes being tendered to Mr. Storm, the Monroe candidate, he accepted them and without notice of his intention added his own county vote to make up the majority by which his nomination was secured. In consequence of this, as alleged, the Montour vote was also withheld from us as it had been before.

JOHN C. YOCUM.

Catawissa, Sept. 11, '82.

THE VOTE FROM LUZERNE.

A correspondent of the Press, writing from Hazleton on the 8th inst., says: "Mr. Buckalew's defeat was agreed on before the conference met. Col. Robert Klotz, the present member from the district, could not openly be a candidate, as he has held the office two terms. However he considered himself a promising dark horse, and throughout the contest his anxiety was something of the proportions of his natural form, and as little concealed. * * The manner in which John A. Gorman handled the conferees from Luzerne surprised even gray-headed old wire-pullers. In the first place these conferees were conceded to Samuel B. Price, a very respectable coal operator at Upper Lehigh, and it was understood that no opposition would be made to him. Older politicians than Mr. Price warned him to beware of Mr. Gorman who has always acted for Col. Klotz, but Mr. Price was guileless enough to believe all the Hazleton politicians told him, and when the Convention met he was very much surprised to find Mr. Gorman the candidate of lower Luzerne. One of the three conferees was Dr. S. W. Trimmer of White Haven, Mr. Gorman's arrangement with Dr. Trimmer, judging from some emphatic remarks of the Doctor after the Convention [Conference] was, that his conferees should be thrown for Mr. Buckalew at the proper time. Col. Klotz never had any idea of allowing Mr Gorman to do any such thing, and the lower Luzerne conferees did not vote for the ex-Senator. This was Mr. Gorman's surprise number two."

Thus far the correspondent of the Press, who has apparently obtained an inkling of the facts from well informed sources. It is perfectly true that Gorman was pledged to Dr. Trimmer and to others, before he carried the Hazleton Convention against Price, that his conferees should vote with Columbia county in Conference whenever his own name was withdrawn or dropped. And it is true also that he secured by this means the votes necessary to his success in that Convention. So also Mr. Hart, one of his conferees, at the time he was chosen declared his choice, after Gorman, would be Mr Buckalew. Several of our citizens who were present at Hazleton, can, in addition to Dr. Trimmer, testify to the position and pledges of Gorman, and to the fact that it was by virtue of those pledges that he carried a vote of 22 to 20 in Convention against Price.

But Gorman was speedily captured by Klotz, and the Conference record shows that when his name was withdrawn on the last ballot the votes of his two conferees who were subject to his control, were transferred to Storm. His pledge was not kept but was treacherously broken, and his conferee votes, which controlled the result, were therefore false votes.

We would gladly stop at this point and yield to charity the field of conjecture to find an excuse or palliation for faithless conduct. But we must add the mention of circumstances, which forbid the field to charity and exclude silence. When a nomination for Miles, upon a consideration of $1000, was proposed to his principal conferee, it was with Gorman that the go-between openly consulted. Nothing however came of that negotiation, for Montour was not in the market to buy or to be sold. Again, soon after the adjournment of the conference it was the same impecunious candidate who was seen with a considerable roll of money in hand, and somewhat elevated with drink, engaged in discourse or controversy with one of his conferees, in a recess from the side-walk, adjoining the American Hotel. This statement is made upon the sufficient authority of Mr. F. L. Miles, a reputable conferee from the county of Montour.

CONGRESSIONAL CONFERENCE.

The Congressional Conference of the Eleventh Pennsylvania District met at the American House Mauch Chunk on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 6th, at 3 o'clock.

The Conference was called to order by S. B. Price of Luzerne, chairman of the district Committee, and organized by choosing Michael Cassidy of Carbon as Chairman and Thomas Hart of Luzerne and John C. Yocum of Columbia as Secretaries.

The following Conferees presented credentials:

Carbon—M. Cassidy, S. Rickert, C. W. Meendsen.

Luzerne—Dr. S. Trimmer, Con. O'Donnell, Thos. Hart.

Monroe—J. Fobel, B. Mansfield, R. Swenk.

Columbia—J. C. Yocum, D. Lowenberg, Cyrus B. McHenry.

Montour—A. Billmeyer, Franklin Sidler, Frank L. Miles.

Pike—Warren K. Ridgeway, M. B. Mott, Jas. R. Smith.

Lackawanna—F. A Beamish, Owen P. Biglin, E. J. Lynott.

Contesting Conferees, namely, D. P. Barton, Joseph L. Bachman and John F. Boyle, appeared from Lackawanna. After full hearing and debate the Conference decided in favor of the returned conferees from Lackawanna and against the contestants, by a vote of 13 to 5.

Michael Cassidy on taking the chair permanently, simply said: Gentlemen of the conference I thank you for the confidence you have shown in me and the honor you have conferred upon me. I shall endeavor to discharge the trust with impartiality and to the best of my ability. It is now in order to nominate persons for member of Congress from the 11th District.

The secretary called over the delegations by counties.

Carbon county nominated A. G. Brodhead.

Columbia county nominated Charles R. Buckalew.

Luzerne county nominated John A. Gorman.

Monroe county nominated J. B. Storm.

Montour county nominated George W. Miles.

Pike county nominated Alfred E Lewis.

Upon proceeding to vote Mr. Buckalew received 6 votes, (Columbia and Lackawanna), and each of the other candidates 3. Four additional votes were taken without result, when the conference took a recess until 5:30 p. m. when votes were taken up to and including the 13th, when an adjournment was had to Thursday morning at 8½ o'clock. Thursday morning the Conference met and adjourned to the Court House, at which place votes up to the 27th, inclusive were taken. Then a recess was ordered to 11 A. M. and upon reassembling votes up to the 35th inclusive were taken. Adjourned to 1:30 P. M. when votes up to 51 inclusive were taken. Recess to 5 P. M. when votes up so 65, inclusive were had. Adjourned to Friday morning at 9 o'clock, at which time, upon reassembling, Mr. Hart of Luzerne withdrew the name of John A. Gorman and the 66th, vote being taken, resulted: Buckalew 7, Storm 11, Miles 3: whereupon the nomination of John B. Storm of Monroe county was announced by the chair.

Upon motion it was, "Resolved: That the nominee of this Conference appoint a Congressional Committee for this district." It was further, "Resolved: That the Congressional Committee to be appointed by the nominee of this Conference, select the place for holding the next Congressional Conference."

Upon invitation, Mr. Storm then addressed the Conference in a few remarks, thanking them for the honor of the nomination and pledging himself to a hearty support of the measures of the party and the interests of his own constituency.

Mr. Lewis, the gentleman in nomination from Pike county, made a few remarks. He expressed himself as thoroughly satisfied with the result of the conference, and felt proud of the man whom it had nominated. Mr. Storm was, he said, a man whose character and abilities would do honor to the position.

The conference then adjourned sine die.

The Contest in Pennsylvania.

The indorsement by the Labor and Workingmen's Party in Pennsylvania of Armstrong, the Greenback candidate for Governor, has given fresh hopes to the success of General Beaver, the regular Republican candidate for Governor. It is expected that Armstrong will draw votes enough from the Democrats and Independents to make Beaver lead the Democratic candidate and the other factions. The Independents are in despair.

Such are the words of the New York Commercial Advertiser, a stalwart republican newspaper, and we hope and believe the wish is father to the thought. It cannot be true, that in any condition of the contest, democrats can be found who will desert the party and its admirable candidate, and vote for Armstrong. For every reason Mr. Pattison ought to get every democratic vote in the state and we believe he will get them. If he should he will be sure of his election. Neither Greenback nor Labor parties ought to be allowed to draw off a democratic vote. In our party there is no feud and no faction. A ticket composed of young, energetic and honest men, one of them well tried in a most onerous position, should command an enthusiastic and unanimous party vote. The Advertiser thinks the Greenback-Labor parties are run in the interest of Cameron and Beaver. Democrats! Beware of them!

Hon. Wm. McMichael on Cameron.

At a meeting of the Independents held in the Academy of music at Williamsport on last Saturday evening Hon. William McMichael, of Philadelphia, charged the Beaver-Cameron party with abusing their trust, and with making the Republican party a mere machine to manufacture grists for their personal benefit and aggrandizement. Cameron was a despot, and exercised autocratic powers in Pennsylvania, as stringently, exactingly and summarily as the Czar. When a man could promise a pliant tool, like Beaver, nearly a year in advance of a nominating convention that he would be its choice, and likewise take as a Christmas present to Mr. Rawle the nomination of Supreme Judge, with his compliments, months in advance of the 10th of May convention, it was proof positive that a personal despot was ruling in the Commonwealth, instead of the people. Four years ago the speaker thought of declaring himself free from such a bondage, but love of party held him back. He trusted, however, that liberty of speech and action would now destroy this one man power, and save the Republican organization from utter ruin. As now controlled it was the most corrupt party that ever swayed power, and would bring ruin if the Camerons, Beavers and Quays continued to hold the reins.

Press Comments.

The failure of the Democratic Conference to nominate Charles R. Buckalew for Congress in the Eleventh district, will be sincerely regretted throughout the State. His eminent ability and ripe experience were called for in this crisis of political affairs, and no man in the State could have rendered greater honor and usefulness to the people of the Commonwealth. But the dissentions of small men are often too potent for fitness without trickery, and it is most natural for small men, even in their jostling against each other, to agree only in destroying those whose destruction is a reproach to them. Ex-Congressman Storm is the winner in the scrub-race for the place Mr. Buckalew did not seek, but agreed to accept, and considering the worse possibilities of the case, the result is fortunate. Mr. Storm will never dishonor his constituency, and that's something to say after such a scramble as there has been in the district.—Phila. Times.

The Democrats of the Eleventh district, as Democrats are apt to do when the chances of success are good, have retired their strongest man in Mr. Buckalew and nominated an old political war-horse instead. John B. Storm will add nothing to the Democratic minority in the next Congress but one vote. Buckalew would have been a distinct influence for good government.—Phila. Press, Rep.

The Democrats of the Eleventh Congressional district are on the up grade. They have not done badly in nominating Mr. John B. Storm for Congress, but they might have done better by nominating Mr. Charles R. Buckalew. Mr. Storm has been in Congress before, and he fairly acquitted himself. But Mr. Buckalew is a gentleman who has more than a nodding acquaintance with political affairs. He is a man of such broad endowments that he is fit for high public service. We need such men at Washington.—Phila Record.

While ex-Senator Buckalew's numerous admirers had hoped that the democratic congressional nomination for the Eleventh district would be conferred upon that able and distinguished gentleman the democrats of the district and of the state have reason to congratulate themselves on the fact that when the conference failed to nominate Mr. Buckalew its choice fell on so capable and worthy a man as John B. Storm. The Eleventh district will have a representative in the next congress of whom its people will have reason to be proud.—Harrisburg Patriot.

On Saturday last a brakeman on the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad named William Kiehl was seriously injured at Lock Haven by being knocked from his train by a drawbridge. He was seriously cut in the neck and hurt internally. He was taken to his home at Sunbury.

Benjamin Zechler, who was discovered over a year ago in a log cabin eight feet square on the Blue mountains, in Albany township, Berks county, naked and covered with filth, and his hair and beard several feet long, died at the county almshouse on Monday aged about forty-five years. He had been penned up twenty-seven years by his brother in this little building that contained no light or ventilation, excepting a small hole through which food was thrown in. He never spoke an intelligible word, and his appearance was that of a wild man. Owing to being unclothed, the hair grew quite thick and long on his body and limbs.

The Star Route trial has ended in a verdict of acquittal of Turner and Peck, a conviction of Miner and Rerdell, and a disagreement of the jury as to Dorsey and Brady. Those convicted were mere tools in the hands of craftier and more guilty men. Brady was an officer of the postal department, who had charge of the letting of contracts to carry the mails, and Dorsey had been a Senator, was secretary of the National Republican committee, and was thus enabled to exert a strong influence in forwarding the conspiracy to plunder the treasury. Not withstanding the failure of the jury to agree, the verdict of the public will hold these two as the chiefs in the Star Route robbery.

Oh, How They Love Them.

A colored voter who "believes in a free North as well as a free South," informs us that the reason that Charles O'Brien, the colored man appointed as a mail carrier, was required to resign, or rather have his name withdrawn, was because he voted for Major White, the Democratic candidate for Mayor at the last municipal election. A flimsy excuse made to lessen the blow hurled at the colored voters of Williamsport. If the rest of them had the spirit of the one that gave this information, not a colored vote in the city would go to help elect the Cameron ticket. The Republicans of Blair county slaughtered William Nesbit for the Legislature, an intelligent and worthy citizen, to make way for a white rooster of the Cameron breed, and the same party is disposed to treat the colored men in Williamsport the same way. —Daily Sun & Banner.

GRANGE STORES NOT LIABLE.

In the Common Pleas of Columbia county. No. 114, Sept. T. 1882.

Appeal of "The Valley Grange" of Millville from the assessment and classification of the Mercantile Appraiser of Columbia county.

BY THE COURT.

Upon the hearing of this appeal, it appeared by testimony and the fact is found so to be, that the appellant, is an association of persons for the purpose among other things of procuring for themselves merchandise for their own use at a cheaper rate than by purchase in limited quantities by each for his own use. In order to accomplish this end the association appoints an agent whose business it is to receive orders from members for groceries, dry goods and other articles which they desire to purchase, and after receiving a number of orders from different members stating quantities needed, to aggregate them and purchase the articles in bulk from wholesale dealers. When the goods are received at the designated place of deposit, the agent delivers them to the members in kind and quantity, according to their respective orders previously given. No commission is paid to the agent, and no profit is charged or received. Sales of goods are not made to persons not members of the association.

The question presented upon these facts is whether the association is liable to pay for a license as a sender of merchandise?

Taxation is regulated by express statutory law. The power in this instance is claimed under the Act of 4th of May, 1841 & Supplements. Purd. Dig. 1456, et seq.

That act requires that persons engaged in selling or vending goods, wares and merchandise shall annually pay for the use of the Commonwealth for their respective licenses certain sums mentioned, according to the amount of annual sales effected.

The terms used in this and all other acts upon the subject to indicate the persons liable to pay for a license are, "the seller or vender" "dealers in goods, wares and merchandise," "persons retailing' and the like. In other words, he must be a merchant according to the popular and generally understand meaning of that term. A merchant is one who buys and trades in anything, and makes a business of buying and selling. 2 Abbott's Law Dictionary 100.

Under the evidence in this case the appellant cannot be held to be a vendor of goods. The word "sale" has a precise legal meaning both in law and equity. It means, at all times, a contract between parties to give and pass rights of property for money, which the buyer pays or promises to pay to the seller for the thing bought and sold. Per. Wayne J. 8 Howard Rep. 495, 544.

The purchase of goods for a number of persons by an agent and the delivery thereof to each according to his order, does not constitute a sale within the meaning of this definition nor according to the common acceptation of that term. It does not appear by the evidence in whose name the goods are purchased. Credit is no doubt given to the Grange for a short time until the goods are distributed to its members and the agent no doubt retains them by way of lien until the amount of their cost is paid. This does not constitute either the Grange or the agent, who is agent for each and every member, a vendor or seller of goods within the reasonable construction of the statute requiring a license fee to be paid.

With practices of other granges we have nothing to do, and therefore, must be understood as deciding this case upon the facts proved upon the hearing, and that under these facts the appellant is not required by law to obtain a license and ought not to have been classified and returned by the Mercantile Appraiser.

The appeal came on to be heard and was argued by counsel, and upon due consideration thereof it is now, September 4th, 1882, ordered, adjudged and decreed that the appellant is not engaged in the selling and vending of goods, wares, merchandise, commodities or effects whatsoever, and that the classification and assessment of it, said appellant, was improperly made by the Mercantile Appraiser, and that his return thereof be and the same is hereby set aside, and the appellant discharged therefrom.

Invitation.

Shoppers are invited to visit our store, when in Philadelphia, to have packages there, and to make a convenience of it generally. It is a handy place, right by the new City Hall, at the very center of the city. It answers our purpose to welcome you, and to provide for such of your wants as we can.

The store is about twice as large as it was two or three years ago; made so by digging under ground and building overhead, and by extension on Chestnut street. Parts of the store are about as comfortable as any place can be; and one of the most comfortable parts is now being got ready for the rest and refreshment of strangers.

One of the pleasant things about the store always has been the fact that you can walk all over it, either alone or with a guide, without ever being asked to buy a thing. We know very well that most of you come to us for a good share of your supplies; why should we spoil your visit by intruding goods upon your attention, when you come to see the place?

But perhaps you are not coming to Philadelphia just now. Very well; take a cooler time. It's cool enough in the store, when you get here. You can write for any goods that you may happen to want; and get them, probably, just as well as if you were on the spot. Any how, you know, you can return whatever you get that you don't like.

We sell more sorts of things than we can put into an advertisement. So, whatever you want, suppose you drop us a line. We'll help you if we can.

A Good Article.

For the past four years the well known house of Baugh & Sons, 20 S. Delaware Avenue, Phila'd. have been offering to our farmers their superior phosphate for wheat, tobacco, corn and other crops. This was the first firm to learn that farmers could not afford to pay from $40 to $60 per ton for a fertilizer and they set to work to manufacture an article for less money, but to contain all the virtues of the high priced article.

They are now manufacturing and selling a phosphate for $25 per ton on cars or boat in Phila., which has been tried and found just what the farmers need. Large numbers of farmers have used it and recommend it to their neighbors. For circular showing guaranteed analysis address

Judge Krickbaum, was foreman of the Grand Jury, and there were many other good men members of the body. They performed their duties faithfully and honestly and in the best interests of the people, whom they represent. They neither recommended a new Court House nor an expensive addition to the old one. The general sentiment appears to be that the public offices as at present arranged will answer very well for the next two years and a half, at least.

The COLUMBIAN did not support Robert Klotz for Congress in 1878 because it believed him to be an irregular nominee. By the efforts of his friends, however, Klotz received 1083 votes in this county, and was elected over Albright, republican, by a plurality of 95 in the district. Ninety-six votes less in Columbia would have defeated him. The men who secured his large vote here are now among those who were earnestly asking for the nomination of Mr. Buckalew. To the manipulations of Robert Klotz mainly, are the people of this county indebted for the defeat of their candidate.

The congregation at the M. E. Church on Sunday morning last was a large one, the occasion being the reopening of the church after very extensive repairs. The sermon was preached By Rev. McGarrah, and was an excellent one. After the services the work of collecting money to pay for the repairs was begun, and in about two hours the handsome sum of $3300, was pledged. In the evening Rev. Wilson, preached, and another subscription of over a hundred dollars, to pay the balance due on the organ, was raised. Our Methodist brethren now have a place of worship of which they are justly proud, without the usual accompaniment of a church debt.

Spring chickens wanted at F. S. Kinports'.

On Sunday last the Lutheran church of this place was re-opened. Services were conducted in the morning at half past ten by Rev. E. A. Sharetts who was the first pastor of this congregation and who preached here thirty years ago, retaining the charge for seven years. In the evening at half past seven an able sermon was delivered by Rev. J. R. Dimm of Selinsgrove, who became pastor of the church twenty-three years ago, and remained here for eight succeeding years. Reference was made by these pastors to the continual growth of this church during the past thirty years; from its beginning in the old Union church, occupied by the Lutheran and Reformed congregations, and standing where the old grave-yard now is, it has constantly moved on, and this occasion was to mark the beginning of a new era of progress. The council have gone to some considerable expense in beautifying the church. The steeple so long crooked by the storms, was made straight, and painted to imitate slate. The brick work and cornice have all been nicely painted, while inside the whole church has been repapered and painted. The stairway leading to the steeple has been removed to make room for the large pipe organ just purchased. The old pulpit is made lower, and nicely painted, and is supplied with a fine set of pulpit furniture.

The work of repairing is now completed and services will be held regularly every sabbath. The new organ, built, by Mr. Moeller of Hagerstown, is a fine toned instrument, the pipes are evenly voiced, and the bass is round and full. We have no doubt the instrument will give entire satisfaction.

On Thursday, 31 ult., an infant child of Luther Hutchens of Falls Run, Luzerne county was buried at this place. On Sunday morning Mrs. Sallie Waters died after an illness of eleven weeks. She was the widow of Lawrence Waters, a well educated gentleman. She reached the age of 72 years. The life she led is an example set before the world, having been quiet peaceable and christianlike. She was for many years a consistent member of the English Lutheran church. Her remains were buried on Tuesday, at which time the word came that Jacob Snyder lay dangerously ill of brain fever and dropsy at the heart. He suffered terribly till early on Thursday morning he was relieved, and called home. Mr. Snyder's departure was mourned by many relatives and friends and neighbors. He was a good neighbor a kind husband and father. He reached the age of nearly 48 years. He leaves a son and daughter, fatherless and motherless. The funeral took place on Saturday.

These three funerals took place in a very short time, for a small village, one having been an infant, another an aged person, the third a middle aged man. Thus repeating the old saying: "The old must die, but the young may die," and should remind us of the scriptural passage: "Be ye therefore also ready, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh."

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hess of Easton, Pa., were the guests of Mrs. D. A. Hess, for the past few days.

The band attended the festival at Orangeville on Saturday evening. A number of the young people drove over also.

Mrs. Thomas Staudt of Hazleton, Pa., is staying with her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. Staudt, for a few days. Mr. Staudt is making a trip through Maryland.

J. H. Hetler, post master of Hetlerville, has been making a number of good improvements in the post office.

The young men are about to organize a camp of Patriotic Order Sons of America, at this place, which move receives our hearty commendation as the principles of the order are patriotic and instructive. The motto being: God, Our Country and our Order.

26 good names have been secured and the charter applied for. The camp will be instituted in about ten days.

Republican Convention.

The Republicans met in convention at the Opera House on Monday afternoon to put in nomination a county ticket. J. S. Woods was elected chairman, and C. C. Peacock and J. P. Sands, secretaries. On calling the roll of townships delegates were found present from Bloomsburg, Berwick, Benton, Beaver, Briarcreek, Catawissa, Fishingcreek, Hemlock, Mifflin, Montour, Mt. Pleasant, Orange and Scott, twenty in all. H. J. Connor, G. W. Supplee and E. B. Guie were named as candidates for the Legislature. The list of delegates was called, when Connor received 8 votes, Supplee and Guie each 12, and the two latter were declared the nominees.

Resolutions endorsing Hon. William Elwell as candidate for President Judge, were adopted on motion of L. S. Wintersteen. The resolutions appear elsewhere.

Silas Conner and E. P. Curtis were elected congressional conferees, E. B. Brown and F. M. Everett, senatorial conferees.

Abram Rice of Beaver was nominated for Jury Commissioner, S. P. Krickbaum of Benton for Coroner, and Jeremiah Kostenbauder of Catawissa for sheriff.

The chairman of the standing committee was authorized to appoint members of the committee to fill all vacancies.

W. M. Monroe, an independent, and a delegate to the convention that nominated Stewart for Governor, then offered the following resolutions;

Resolved, That the Republican County Convention of Columbia County duly constituted in accordance with the usages of of the party in the County, do hereby reaffirm their devotion to the principles of true Republicanism.

Resolved, That in fidelity to these principles we do pledge ourselves to a united and hearty support of the county ticket nominated by this convention.

Resolved, That we do hereby recognize the ticket nomiated by the Republican Convention at Philadelphia headed by Senator John Stewart, standing upon the platform of principles by said convention adopted, as the exponent of true Republicanism, and will accordingly labor zealously to secure his election next November.

Resolved, That while we deplore the serious division existing in the Republican party in Pennsylvania, we recognize the spoils system and the arrogant corruption rule of the Bosses and especially the offensive and selfish personal domination of J. Donald Cameron, sustained in his vicious methods and tyranical usurpation by the present national administration, as the existing differences.

Resolved, That in our opinion lasting and honorable harmony cannot be restored nor the best interests of the party and the State subserved, without the complete cause of abandonment of these methods and the surrender of the power usurped from the people, and we believe that the public records and the utterances of some of the candidates nominated by the Convention of May 10th at Harrisburg together with their shameful and wilful disregard of the popular will at Chicago, their antecedents and affiliations, make it impossible for the party to unite harmoniously in their support.

Resolved, That we regard the invitation of Senator Stewart to General Beaver to jointly discuss before our intelligent public the issues dividing the Republican party as a wise and manly way of detecting where lies the responsibility for Republican differences and how they can best correct them.

The resolutions were directed to be laid under the table by a vote of 17 to 3. They were only a repetition of the Republican platform, put in plain language, but the application was too strong, and they were rejected.

Prisoners Sentenced.

Asa Y. Hess of Stillwater was convicted last week, of burglary. His offense, according to the evidence, was in entering the store of M. McHenry & Bro., at Stillwater, at night, and attempting to blow open the safe in the office. Four holes were drilled around the lock, and then Hess came into the store presumably to get powder, when he was seen, and positively identified by a young man named Lemon who was sleeping in the store as a watchman, a previous attempt at robbery having been made. There were several hundred dollars in the safe. Hess had some accomplices, but their names are not known as yet. The sentence imposed by the court on Monday afternoon was as follows:

You were convicted by the verdict of a jury, of entering the store of Moses McHenry in the night-time and attempting to purloin his property. You were convicted upon the express testimony of one witness, which your evidence did not induce the jury to disbelieve. He had, so far as we can understand, no motive to misrepresent. He had an opportunity to see you. He did see you, and it is fortunate for you that he did not take a better aim with his gun than he did. We are satisfied of the correctness of the verdict, but we are not satisfied that you have been heretofore viciously inclined. You allowed yourself to be possessed of the idea of obtaining property in that clandestine manner. You ought to have remembered that you were endangering the peace and comfort of your family, depriving them of their natural support—all that ought to have impressed itself upon your mind then; you see it now, unquestionably. While we might visit upon you a severe penalty of four or five years in the penitentiary, yet we are inclined to think that the punishment which we will inflict upon you will be all-sufficient for the purpose of vindicating the law and deterring you from committing the like offence again.

Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced?

H. E. Smith, Esq., counsel for the prisoner, here said that his client threw himself entirely on the mercy of the court.

The fact that he has a large family, the fact that he has lived in this community all his lifetime, and has never been in this court under any similar charge, or under any charge, all these things the court fully understands and should consider in imposing sentence.

COURT.—We have fully considered the case. The sentence of the court is that you, Asa Y. Hess, pay a fine of one hundred dollars to the commonwealth, and the costs of prosecution, that you undergo imprisonment by separate or solitary confinement at labor in the Eastern penitentiary for the term of one year and six months, and that you stand committed until this sentence is complied with.

James Conner was then called up and the court imposed his sentence in the following language:

You were convicted by the verdict of a jury for assault and battery, with the purpose in view of ravishing a young girl; what have you to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?

PRISONER.—Your honor, Judge, I am sorry that I am here before you for sentence. I have never been before you before, and hope it is the last time, and therefore I throw myself upon the mercy of the court, and hope you will give me as easy a sentence as you can. I am not guilty of the crime, I have always tried to carry myself pretty straight. I am a stranger in the place, have not been here long; don't think I deserve a heavy sentence for that, because I am not guilty of it.

COURT.—If you are not guilty you are the victim of a set of circumstances that seem to establish your guilt with almost absolute certainty. You were a stranger in the house of Mr. Bidleman on the occasion when this matter is alleged to have occurred, came there to labor on his farm, stayed with him over night, but went away before daylight the next day. In the meantime you were in the bedroom of his daughters, and the excuse which you gave for being there is clearly not satisfactory. If it were true that you had occasion to get up and go down stairs and stumbled into the room, as you allege, by falling against and opening a door you would not have been found along the bedside about the middle of the person of that young lady, and with your hand upon her person, nor would you in all human probability, in your night clothes, have got up with a bottle of chloroform in your hand and tried to go down stairs with it. But the bottle of chloroform was found in the room near the bed, where you had probably dropped it in your haste, and the young girl testified that she felt an effect like that due to taking chloroform or ether. If she had not awakened as she did, it is likely that you would have wrought her ruin—more than that, you ran the risk of producing her death by the use of an article which very often does produce death, and in your unskilled hands might easily have so resulted. It was a high-handed offence and merits the severest condemnation of the law.

The court sentences you, James Conner, to pay a fine of $200, and the costs of prosecution; that you undergo imprisonment by separate or solitary confinement at labor in the Eastern Penitentiary for the term of three years. And that you stand committed until this sentence is complied with.

George F. Harris, convicted, on confession, of stealing four blankets from Gibbs' livery, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25.00 and costs of prosecution, and imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for one year.

Abraham Whipple, convicted of stealing harness &c., from Alfred Irvin, was sentenced to pay a fine of $50.00 and costs of prosecution, and imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for two years.

The Grand jury made their final report as follows:

COLUMBIA COUNTY SS:—

The grand Inquest of Pennsylvania inquiring for the body of the county of Columbia, respectfully report:

That we endeavored to discharge our duties in the matter of the presentment of bills of indictment which were laid before us, impartially and to the best of our ability.

That we have examined the public buildings and we make the following recommendations in the way of improvement and good repair of the county's property:

1st. That the tin roof on the jail building be repainted, and that the lamp posts in front of jail be kept in order for lighting, and also that other lights be procured upon the same street leading from the jail to Main street.

2nd. That the Court House and jail be connected by telephone, and that the Sheriff be remunerated the money expended by him for the telephone already at the jail.

3rd. That a new town clock be procured to take place of the one now in use, and that the steeple upon the Court House be repaired, and that the grounds about the Court House, and streets and alleys leading thereto be kept neat and free from rubbish.

4th. In our judgment we believe that it would be a matter of greater convenience to the citizens of the county, if our September term of court should come at a later period, and would suggest a change in this respect if practicable; and further that the Court House and the public offices are sufficiently large and commodious for the wants of the public; also that the Sanitary condition of the jail should meet the attention of the commissioners, and better drainage and sewerage be had.

We will not say anything about the nuisance in the rear of the Court House called a water closet as we learn that Grand juries have repeatedly called attention to this matter, and it is still there. We are glad to learn however that the commissioners will not permit this to be the subject of complaint hereafter.

Respectfully Submitted,
I. K. KRICKBAUM,

Speaking of the action of the Harrisburg council towards the fire department of that city the Patriot says something that fits Bloomsburg. It is this

"A single fire may do the tax-payers more harm than the repairs of a dozen engines would cost. An inefficient fire department will inevitably increase the rates of insurance. An extensive fire would have the effect of increasing the tax-rate by lessening the value of the ground burned over. For these reasons among many it is clear that the policy of councils is in direct antagonism to the interests of the people of the city. It is what might be styled a penny-wise and pound-foolish, save-at-the-spigot-and-spill-at-the-bung policy. Councilmen should remember that the safty of the property and lives of the people whom they represent is committed to their care, and that they cannot evade the responsibility for a failure of the fire department in case they refuse to sustain that department in a proper manner."

While our council has provided the department with hose and other necessary equipments, they have rendered it useless by refusing to take water for fire protection.

Starting Plants from Slips.

Peter Henderson, in the Ladies' Floral Cabinet, gives the following directions for the domestic propagation of plants from slips: Florists use what are called propagating benches for rooting cuttings when wanted on a large scale, as they usually are by them; but when an amateur, not having greenhouse facilities, wishes to root a few slips, there is no process that we can recommend better than what is known as the "saucer system," which, even at the risk of telling it to some of your readers who already understand it, I must again repeat, as there is no other plan that is so simple and so safe. Take any common saucer or plate, into which put sand to the depth of an inch or so. Then prepare the cuttings in the usual manner and place them in the sand close enough to touch each other. The sand is then to be watered so as to bring it into the condition of mud. The saucer thus filled with slips may be placed on the window-sill and exposed to the sun. The cuttings must be fully exposed to the sun, and never shaded. But one condition is absolutely essential to success: until the cuttings take root the sand must be kept continually saturated with water, and always in the condition of mud. To do this the slips must be watered at least once a day with a very fine rose watering pot, and the watering must be done very gently, else the cuttings may be washed out. There is every certainty that ninety-nine per cent. of the cuttings put in will take root, provided they were in the proper condition when placed in the saucer, and that the temperature has not been lower than sixty degrees for greenhouse plants, or less than eighty degrees for tropical plants. By the saucer system a higher degree of temperature may be maintained without injury than by any other system of propagation, as the cuttings in reality are placed in water, and will not wilt, provided the water is not allowed to dry out. Still, the tender slip, until rooted, will not endure a long continuation of very high temperature, and we would advise that propagation be done at such seasons that they may have as near as possible a uniform temperature of seventy-five or eighty degrees in the sunlight. When rooted they should be potted in dry soil, such as is recommended for sowing seeds in. They should be placed in pots not exceeding two and a half inches in diameter and treated carefully, by shading and watering for two or three days.

Two Hundred Years.

PHILADELPHIA PREPARING TO CELEBRATE HER BI-CENTENNIAL—A GRAND CIVIC, MUSICAL AND MILITARY PAGEANT OF FOUR DAYS PROPOSED.

Appended is a general outline of the more prominent features of the bi-centennial celebration in Philadelphia the latter part of October. It is promised by those in charge that the observance of the two hundredth anniversary of the founding of Philadelphia and the commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be the grandest celebration ever held in Philadelphia, not excepting the centennial.

FIRST DAY.

Parade of civic bodies, including thirty-five companies from the state, the old firemen of Philadelphia, the paid fire department, who will entertain the visitors; the United States department, the postoffice, showing the rise and progress of the postal service. The United States mint will display the process of coining, striking off a commemorative medal; the city and state departments, the secret and benevolent societies, temperance organizations, the butchers in magnificent costume. The marine band of Washington will be at the head of the United States department. Grand tableaux of the landing of Penn at Dock street wharf, naval display on the Delaware, ending with magnificent display of fire works in the park, with pieces illustrating the early history of Philadelphia. At least 25,000 men will be in the procession.

SECOND DAY.

Parade of the different trades, manufactories, and foundries of Philadelphia, with wagons, all showing the various modes of manufacture; woodware, hardware, furniture, printing, dyeing, weaving, sewing machines, engine building, tinware, household goods, upholstering. Grand parade of the Pennsylvania railroad, showing the rise and progress of railroading and car building. Thirty thousand mechanics and manufacturers in line. In the evening grand historical moving tableaux, showing historical incidents in the history of Pennsylvania, followed by an epic poem, illustrated by tableaux in floats or cars, each car drawn by four horses, and shown by lights and carried by men.

THIRD DAY.

Musical entertainment. Allison's hall (old machinery hall) engaged, lighted by electric lights and fitted up to accommodate 15,000 persons; 2,000 singers on the platform; all the principal Welsh and German singing societies and choirs; $1,250 in prizes; reception to the societies in the evening. Grand regatta on the Schuylkill by the navy. Bicycle race and Caledonian games in the park. Parade of Knights Templars; all the leading commanderies from the principal cities; five to ten thousand Knights, with their magnificent costumes and Oriental drill on parade; reception at the Academy of Music, horticultural and industrial hall in the evening.

FOURTH DAY.

The greatest military display ever seen in Pennsylvania; 25,000 state and visiting troops and Grand Army posts; all the National Guard of Pennsylvania and New Jersey; visiting corps from Boston, Providence, New York, Baltimore and other points; 10,000 men of the Grand Army; arrangements will be made to entertain all visiting delegations of soldiers. In the evening the city will be entirely illuminated, and receptions at the Academy of Music, horticultural hall and other places. During the four days the city will be magnificently decorated; the United States will lend the assistance of all departments.

Now is the time for the ministers to work up a revival by telling sinners that if they don't repent they'll go where Guiteau has gone. No man even in the next world, will want to find himself in such disgraceful company.

"POUR ON OIL."

L. P. Follett, Marion, O., states that he has used Thomas' Eclectric Oil for burns, and has found nothing to equal it in soothing the pain and giving relief.

Forms of Oaths.

The forms of oath now in use in the legislative assemblies of various foreign countries are as follows: Bavaria—"I swear. So help me God and His Holy Gospel." Denmark—"I promise and swear. So help me God and His Holy Word." Greece—"I swear in the name of the Holy and Consubstantial and Indivisible Trinity." Hesse Darmstadt—"I swear. So help me God." Saxe-Coburg and Baden—"I swear. So help me God." Holland—"I swear. So help me God." Portugal—"I swear on the Holy Gospel." Prussia—"I swear by God, the Almighty and Omniscient. So help me God." Servia—"I swear by one God and with all that is according to law most sacred and in this world dearest. So help me God in this and that other world." Spain—After swearing the deputy on the Gospel, the President says: "Then may God repay you: but if you fail, may He claim it from you." Sweden and Norway—"I (President or Vice President only) swear before God and His Holy Gospel. I will be faithful to this oath as sure as God shall save my body and soul." Switzerland—"In the presence of Almighty God I swear. So help me God." United States—"I do solemnly swear. So help me God." It is noted, in connection with this record, that as States advance in civilization they show an increased disposition not to swear. For example, Austria, France, Germany, Italy and the United States either abandoned the theistic oath or made its use optional; while in unimportant and backward countries, like Servia, Greec, Portugal and Spain, the oath is most stringently imposed.

Men and Women.

Although both sexes are bound by the same code of morals, there appears to be two states of morality. One for women and one for the men; and women have instituted these two states. In her ignorance and blindness she tolerates in men that which she condemns in her own sex. A man may go wherever his passions or inclinations lead him, yet he is coddled, flattered, smiled upon and recognized in society. He may be addicted to the vice, yet he finds no difficulty in effecting a passport into the society of pure women, or being admitted to the homes of respectable families. But how is it with a woman? If she has strayed from the path of virtue, or has been sought, won, ruined and forsaken, is there a hand in kindness held out to lead her back to the paths of rectitude? If she makes the fatal mistake and takes the first step to ruin, but perhaps would gladly return, is she allowed to do so? Is she by the influence of some humane sister, ever restored to her friends, society and the world? No! the very women who smile upon the hardened libertine, frown upon his unhappy victim, and shut her out forever from a purer, happier life.

Althoug the making of a new nose for a person deprived of his natural organ of smelling has been repeatedly undertaken with success, it is a nice and difficult operation; and an attempt just made in Vienna by Prof. Billroth, one of the most distinguished surgeons of Austria, to supply a soldier who had been frightfully mutilated in Bosnia with an artificial nose, has attracted much attention. The material for the new organ was taken from the skin of the forehead. The operation is reported to have been entirely successful, and with a supplementary shaping process, it expected to result in a nose that cannot be distinguished from a natural one.

The bicycle is said to be a graceful arrangement, composed chiefly of two wheels turned by three cranks; one seated on a saddle, turns the other two with his feet.

Demand it, and take no other iron preparation except Brown's Iron Bitters. It is the best.

When you have found a man who thinks it his duty to tell you of your faults you have also found a man who never thinks it his duty to tell you of your virtues.

The law of harvest is to reap more than you sow. Sow an act and you reap a habit; sow a habit and you reap a character; sow a character and you reap a destiny.

Ingersoll has endorsed Beecher, Beecher has endorsed Ingersoll, and Satan has increased his order for fuel for next year by over a thousand tons.

A vigorous growth of hair is promoted and the youthful color restored by applying Parker's Hair Balsam.

Hop Bitters.

Are the Purest and Best Bitters ever made.

They are compounded from Hops, Malt, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion,—the oldest, best and most valuable medicines in the world and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other remedies, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill health can possibly long exist where Hop Bitters are used, so varied and perfect their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use Hop Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged, drunken nostrum, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made; the "Invalid's Friend and hope," and no person or family should be without it. (3)
